Today, an officer working an overtime detail at the transit center contacted a male who was waiting for a bus. During a casual conversation the officer noticed something sticking out from the male's sock. Believing it was narcotics, the officer asked the male to remove it. After doing so, the male handed the officer Meth. During a search of him, several other baggies of Meth and a scale were located. He was arrested and booked for narcotic sales. An officer contacted two people who were setting up camp. The officer contacted them and learned the male had a felony warrant and some drugs in his pocket. The female had a no-bail out of county misdemeanor warrant. They were both arrested and booked. Officers also responded to a domestic disturbance occurring on a sidewalk. The male half was extremely intoxicated and tried to walk away. He resisted officers when they tried to detain him and was taken to the ground and handcuffed. The investigation determined the male had gone to the female's residence and kicked in her front door. He then began assaulting her and taking several items, including cash, from her residence. Witnesses confirmed what occurred and the male was taken to jail on several felony and misdemeanor charges.
